East Coast are shut down in connection with the ILA strike, we will offer to move cargo to an alternate port on the US West Coast or via Canada.

In the event that cargo needs to be routed to an alternate port of export we will reinstate our routing fee announced earlier this year. Cargo will only be moved upon request and agreement with the controlling cargo party.

Effective January 1, 2013, export cargo which is rerouted will incur additional costs
 In the event that import cargo is re-routed the cost differential would apply based on the available service options.

We are monitoring the situation closely to ensure that we are ready to re-route cargo as required. The contingencies being planned are subject to the underlying carrier's service and availability.
